Donor Advised Fund for Corporate Philanthropy

A donor advised fund through Four County Community Foundation provides a simple, flexible and tax-efficient way to streamline your corporate giving. The company makes a gift to establish the fund and then remains actively involved in suggesting grants from the fund to nonprofit organizations. The ease of use and potential tax advantages make donor advised funds the fastest-growing charitable giving vehicle in the nation.

A BETTER APPROACH

TRI, a company with a tradition of giving back, receives many requests for donations. In the past, the company's president, Anthony Hall, found it hard to decide which appeals to respond to and even harder to know if his company's charitable gifts made a difference. Three years ago, the company established a donor advised fund at the local community foundation. Each year, partners add a percentage of profits to the fund. A team of employees from TRI meets with the community foundation to review local needs and recommend grants. said Anthony, "Our company is able to do much more through our community foundation."

Donor advised funds provide a way for your business to show it cares about its local community and raise awareness about community needs. This type of fund can also strengthen employees' relationships with one another and within the community by providing an enriching, shared giving experience.

A donor advised fund is typically less costly and less time consuming to administer than other forms of philanthropic giving (such as a private foundation), but it still allows you to establish a charitable legacy in the name of your business and fulfill multiple charitable interests.

By working through the community foundation, your charitable gift qualifies you for maximum tax advantage under federal law, and you take advantage of the expertise of professional program staff and investment managers. Your business can establish a fund today and make grant recommendations now or in the future.
